- 25X1 1. An airfield is situated about 1.5 km east of the village of Doberitz, which is about 12 km northeast of Resko (Regenwalde-054/1100). The field is enclosed on the north, east, and south by trees, but is partly open on the west. Its length is about 400 meters; the east end is about 200 meters wide, and the west end 250-300 meters. It has a level surface recently cleared of tree stumps and roots. A narrow gauge railroad which connected Resko and the airfield in April 1951 has since been dismantled. There are some new huts situated in the woods at the southeast corner of the airfield; their roofs are covered with tree branches. The hut marked No. 1 on the attached sketch was occupied by Polish guards, and hut No. 2, which had a telephone line leading into it, was surrounded by a high barbed wire fence.
2. A large former German airfield is located eight kilometers west of Resko. There are eight plywood (Pressplatten) huts, each capable of accommodating 50 men, in the woods adjacent to the airfield. The guard occupies one of the huts, and the remainder are vacant.
